SECOND REGIMENT IN CAMP

First Dress Parade at Lincoln Takes Place a Few Hours After Arrival.

TROUBLE OVER RESIDENT INSURANCE ACT

Because of Protests Commissioner Bryant's Ruling is Set Aside for Rehearing—John Spencer's Successor.

LINCOLN, Sept. 9.—(Special).—All companies of the Second Regiment of the Nebraska National Guard arrived today and were transported in street cars to Lincoln park, where the encampment will be held. Most of the day was spent in laying out the camp, putting up tents and arranging for the future comfort of the soldiers. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the entire regiment participated in dress parade. It is estimated there are about 500 soldiers in camp. The quartermasters of the different companies drew their supplies shortly after noon and dinner was served about 2:30.

The first company to arrive was Company I of Tecumseh, which came in over the Burlington road at 6 a. m. Company D of Fairbury arrived a few minutes later over the Rock Island. At 10:15 Company G of Omaha arrived, followed a few minutes later by Companies C of Nebraska City and L of Norfolk. Between 1 and 2 o'clock this afternoon Companies B of Ord, M of Aurora, E of North Platte, K of Schuyler and M of Albion and the regimental band from Hastings reached here over different roads. The companies presented an excellent appearance.

Constructing the Insurance Law.

There is a wide difference of opinion among insurance men and lawyers in this state regarding the proper construction to be placed upon a section of the resident insurance agency act passed by the last legislature. Deputy Commissioner Bryant made a ruling on the question involved several weeks ago, but on account of numerous protests from representatives of insurance companies it has been set aside by Governor Foynter, acting as insurance commissioner. The act in question provides that before any corporation or association is licensed to conduct a fire insurance business in Nebraska it shall first file with the insurance department a sworn statement that it will not directly or indirectly issue any policy or otherwise, write any fire insurance upon any property situated in this state, in whole or in part, except under a policy which shall be regularly issued and duly countersigned by its legally authorized agent, resident within the county or state where such property insured or to be insured is situated, such agent having been duly authorized by the state insurance commissioner.

The question involved is whether fire insurance policies must be issued by an agent within the county where the property is situated or by any duly authorized agent within the state to cover on property outside or beyond his location.

In constructing the section Mr. Bryant held that policies must be issued by an agent within the county where the property is situated. The whole problem hinges on the meaning which should be placed upon the word "or" in "county or state." Deputy Commissioner Bryant will again hear arguments on the point. In response to a communication from Captain Palmer of Omaha protesting against the ruling of the insurance department, Governor Foynter wrote Deputy Commissioner Bryant as follows:

LINCOLN, Sept. 1.—Hon. W. F. Bryant, Insurance Commissioner: Dear Sir—Captain Palmer of Omaha insurance man, just called me up over the telephone and requested a hearing in the matter of resident agents. He said that he saw your decision in the papers upon that subject and desired the privilege of being heard before you took any further action. He is intending to go to Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon and will not be able to have the hearing before you until he returns. I granted his request, so that the matter of resident agents might be left in abeyance until he can be heard on the subject. Very truly,

W. A. FORTNER, Governor.

This letter was directed to the deputy commissioner while he was at his home in Hartington. The announcement of the rehearing was not made until today when the Governor's letter was given to the press as an explanation of the setting aside of the former ruling of the department.

Appointments and Corporations. George Rodgers, a democrat of this county, was today appointed by Governor Foynter a member of the Board of Education for the Peru Normal school to succeed

REUNION OF THE VETERANS

Grand Army to Hold Its Twenty-Third Annual Gathering This Week.

CAMPS ARE TO BE PITCHED AT LINCOLN

Program for the Encampment is of Interest to All Patriotic People—Preparations for Comfort of Men Who Saved the Union.

LINCOLN, Sept. 9.—(Special).—The twenty-third annual reunion of civil war veterans, which opens here Monday morning, promises to surpass in point of attendance any gathering of the Nebraska department since it was organized. The event this year is made more important by the reunion of the members of the First Regiment, which will be held September 13, 14 and 15 of the same week. The program arranged for the entertainment of the soldiers of the two wars is quite elaborate, including in addition to speaking, a spectacular production of one of the great naval battles of the Spanish war. It was thought until a few days ago that President McKinley, General Miles, Assistant Adjutant General Corbin and Congressman Henderson could be induced to attend the reunion, but all of those officials have found it impossible to accept the invitation extended.

The program for each day will be of interest to all patriotic people. Among those who will address the soldiers are General John M. Thayer, Major V. S. Clarkson, Senator M. L. Hayward, Senator Allen, Assistant Secretary of War Melville John, A. Ehrhardt, H. C. Russell, C. E. Adams, T. J. Majors and J. C. Delmont. The scenic displays will be given Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. The Nebraska department has extended an invitation to all soldiers who enlisted for the Spanish war to spend the week on the reunion grounds and it is expected that all, including the First Regiment, will avail themselves of the privilege.

In arranging for the reunion much attention has been paid to the preparations for the comfort of the soldiers while they are in camp. The Woman's Relief corps, assisted by several other societies, will, in addition to the entertainment during the week, the camping ground is situated conveniently, being not over a mile from the city, with a good street car service for the accommodation of visitors. A postoffice will be established at the camp, and all mail addressed to the veterans will be sent there for distribution.

Historical Sketch.

The Nebraska department of the Grand Army of the Republic was organized at Omaha June 12, 1877. A provisional department was established immediately after the close of the war, but no report was made to the national headquarters, and it was soon dropped from the rolls. In 1874 another provisional department was organized, with Colonel J. E. Philpot of Lincoln as commander. The only authentic record of this organization is contained in a history of the Grand Army published at Washington several years ago. Otto Funke of Lincoln was appointed senior vice commander, Webster Eaton, Kearney, junior vice commander, and Lee J. Eaton, assistant adjutant general. The council of administration was comprised of Alexander Schlegel, Plattsmouth; Otto F. Stiles, Omaha; T. J. Majors, Peru; R. M. Grimes, Kearney; and C. J. Dilworth, Red Cloud. Philpot was subsequently relieved at his own request from the office of commander and Paul Vandervoort, who had in the same year resigned as assistant adjutant general of the Department of Illinois and moved to Omaha, was appointed in his stead. This organization continued without any material change until 1877. The membership was small, numbering not over 100 soldiers.

State departments of the Grand Army of the Republic are established in much the same way as states are admitted to the union. A provisional organization is first established which, as soon as it meets the requirements of the constitution of the national organization, is admitted as a state department. The required membership was not attained by the Nebraska department until 1877. Paul Vandervoort was then elected commander and a permanent organization was perfected, averaging about thirty-four members each. One post had been dropped from the list a year or so after the department was established and in 1879 there were only five posts in good standing, with a total membership of only 103 veterans. In the year following the eight posts were established, increasing the total membership to 1,129. James W. Savage, who was then department commander, was re-elected and the next year twenty-one additional posts were added, increasing the membership to over 2,000.

This steady advance has continued, but during the past few years there has been a slight decrease in membership. In 1893 and the years following the average membership dropped on account of non-payment of dues due to the hard times then prevailing in all sections of the country. Some of these posts have been reinstated. In 1895 the department numbered 7,585 members. At the present time there are 376 posts in the state, making a total membership of 66,446. The early records of the Nebraska department were not published until 1895, when a small pamphlet containing the records of the first four years was compiled by Brad P. Cook, appointed as a special committee on unpublished history. Incomplete records of the proceedings of the department from the time it was chartered until 1895 are on file at the headquarters office in the Capitol building, but with the exception of the first four years, they have never been published.

Post Commanders.

Following is a list of the past department commanders of the Nebraska organization: Paul Vandervoort (1877), Post 2, Fort Omaha; R. H. Wither (1878), address unknown; J. W. Savage (1879 and 1880), Post 24, Lincoln; J. Alexander (1881 and 1882), Post 214, Lincoln; H. E. Palmer (1883), Post 45, Plattsmouth; A. V. Cole (1885), Post 31, Juniata; John M. Thayer (1886), Post 11, Grand Island; H. C. Russell (1887), Post 2, Schuyler; W. C. Henry (1888), Post 18, Fairmont; S. H. Morrison (1889), Post 24, Nebraska City; T. S. The first reunion of the Nebraska department was held at Newman's Grove, in Butler county, in 1877. Since then reunions have been held in Grand Island, Fremont, Kearney, Hastings, Omaha, Beatrice and George Houseworth will receive the nomination and be elected to succeed himself as clerk of the district court. There are five candidates for county judge: J. E. Douglas of Weeping Water, William D. Dwyer of Elmwood, C. E. Tett of Avoca and T. F. Wiles and B. C. Jack of this city. Carrie M. Countryman of Nebraska has asked the convention to give her the nomination for superintendent of public instruction. W. Williams, C. W. of the same ward, and C. S. Morrison of Eagle are also competitors of Weeping Water are also after it. T. E. Williams of Eight-Mile Grove will probably not meet with much opposition for the nomination of sheriff, although Ed. B. Young and E. W. Young would be delighted to receive the nomination. George Young is quite sure of the nomination for county commissioner for the third term, although J. H. Davis of Avoca and George LaDue of Union are in the hands of their friends.
